Background:

Cassidy Garret grew up in Arizona with her family. Her dad owns a cattle ranch south of Tucson. Has a sister and brother and they used to go explore in the wilds when they were older. During her teens, Cass started exhibiting various psychic abilities, including strong empathy. She can't read minds, but she picks up on enough she has demonstrated the ability to know a person's intentions and who is trustworthy.

One day while exploring with her siblings they found a mine and went in. They were attacked by a spider the size of a husky. It stung Cass and crawled up over her. She was paralyzed and would have died but her brother bashed it with a rock and then scared it off with a flashlight. They dragged her out and she survived the poison—no one believed them about the size, assuming she'd been stung by some cave spider and they exaggerated the size. Cass still remembers it climbing up over her preparing to finish her off for a meal.

Since then she hates spiders, but she also got curious about giant creatures and discovered folklore and mythology. Trying to make sense of what she saw, she studied both in college.

Reasons for Joining:

Cass gained her degrees and worked in a library but started taking excursions into areas with reported sightings of strange things. She crossed paths with Project Threshold people on more than one occasion and Command took an interest in her.

In the beginning they recruited her for Research, but once the Cleansers discovered her psychic abilities and her ability to work with people and even persuade others to listen to her, they asked her if she'd want to try working with the DCT.

They added her to a team with Kurt Brodenstein and others and those two meshed well. Cass softens his argumentative side and he protects her at all costs.

Personal Interests: She's fascinated with mythology and folklore, wondering if all the legends might be true. Thus far, she's convinced everything had some truth to it.

She enjoys sushi and other exotic foods.
Listens to lots of different kinds of music.
